

Support for Team Training

The Social Workers' Educational Trust is a charity which promotes social work education. This includes both learning by social workers, and making the public aware of the role and value of social work.

Learning within teams is an important way in which social workers can develop their skills and knowledge.

The Trust can provide financial help of up to £1000 to assist team learning. We would welcome applications from teams in all areas of practice who may wish to organise an event such as a team day, or a series of shorter events. The grant might go towards the cost of a speaker, a facilitator, organisational costs, or books and other resources.

We will invite the group to provide a short account of the issues or learning, and this will be made available on the SWET/ BASW website as a resource for others.

Teams may be from the public sector, the private sector, or from a more informal network of colleagues. The focus must be on an aspect of social work, and those attending will be practising social workers.

Due to a specific bequest, applications from Wales would be particularly welcome.

For an application form and fuller details, please see the SWET website at:

<https://socialworkerseducationaltrust.org.uk/>